This is a three story high, three bay wide structure. Covered with formstone, it has been considerably altered.

The first story consist of two sheet glass windows flanking a deeply recessed center section consisting of two one piece sheet glass windows and three doors. Glass one piece transoms appear above the doors, aluminum siding above and below the windows of the center section, and in the flanking sections, aluminum appears below the windows, and wood above. This whole arrangement appears beneath a wooden cornice.

The second story has one long rectangular sheet glass window contained between a flat-arched wooden lintel and an aluminum sill. The window is flanked by two aluminum panels.

The thrid story contains three windows, all double hung 1/1, with stone sills and flat arched splayed formstone arches.

A drainpipe traverses the facade at the roofline.
